

Giving and Getting

Much suffering in this world comes from the mistaken belief that it is possible to get something for nothing. When you think about it, the concept of something for nothing makes no sense. It is completely unbalanced and unsustainable.

Those who know real success and fulfillment understand the fallacy, waste and impossibility of seeking something for nothing. Winners and achievers know that a team victory can only be attained by everyone trying to help her teammates

At a fundamental level, getting and giving are the same. That is why those who seek to avoid giving come up empty. And those who offer the most of themselves enjoy much success.

In a team's decisions, relationships, plans and goals keep in mind that the value everyone receives from anything is in direct proportion to the value each teammate puts into it. Being part of a team is an opportunity to make a difference that only each individual can make. Do, and you will be. Create, and you will have.

An individual can make a difference. A team creates a miracle.